Recipe for Success: Peirce Entrepreneurship

“The best way to predict the future is to create it.” - Peter Drucker

The sun has not yet risen when Jovanna Acchione Bevilacqua ’81 starts her working day: she is the proprietor of Fabio & Danny’s Café, located at the train station in Wayne, PA. Hot coffee and delicious food, combined with Jovanna’s shining personality, ensures a bright start for the commuters she welcomes every morning. While the gracious Jovanna makes it all seem easy on the surface, a deeper look reveals that her business successes have come as a result of a great deal of effort.

Owning her own business was a longstanding dream of Jovanna’s. She wanted to follow in the entrepreneurial tradition of her beloved parents, immigrants from Italy who had over the years built a very successful construction company from the ground up. Before deciding to open her own café three years ago, Jovanna and her co-owners - husband Joseph and son Fabio - had to research the “sweat equity” needed to fit out the “Main Line” in order to very competitive cafe business on Philadelphia’s “Main Line” in order to craft a viable business plan. Once her head and heart said this idea was a “go”, she and her family had to face the myriad of demands of bankers and local government officials, as well as provide the “sweat equity” needed to fit out the operational needs of the new enterprise.

In many ways, Jovanna’s story is typical of those who pursue the dream of owning their own business. Peirce assistant professor and faculty chair, business, Dr. Michael Schirmer, an expert in entrepreneurial studies, notes that “the successful entrepreneur has the insight to recognize opportunity where most see perilous risk, the passion and drive to churn ideas into reality, and the vision to create a business from once there was none.”

While Jovanna runs the café with the support from friends and family (including her sister and fellow Peirce alumna Donna Acchione Page ’79), the business demands her non-stop attention. She works constantly, often seven days a week... but she loves it. And after three years in business, it seems the vision she had for her business has worked out. The family opened a second cafe in Bryn Mawr two years ago, and both businesses have developed into popular destinations for the communities in which they are situated. In addition, Fabio & Danny’s has expanded their services to include a thriving on-site event rental and catering business.

Jovanna Bevilacqua’s entrepreneurial story is as an example of what can be accomplished with hard work, thorough planning, and the personal drive to make your own vision a reality.
Saluting Service: New Members Join Trustees

The College is fortunate to have committed individuals serving on our Board of Trustees who give of their time, talents, and treasure to enhance Peirce’s mission. Former healthcare executive Linnette W. Black and Comcast Senior Vice President of Customer Experience Tom Karinshak have recently joined the Trustees, a group that includes professionals drawn from the region’s financial, legal, non-profit, human resources, and industrial sectors. We thank all of the members of the Board of Trustees for their commitment to the College.

Healthcare Advantage

Health information employers today are looking for new hires to have hands-on experience with electronic health record systems. This is driven by the growing number of electronic health records systems over hard-copy files, and applicants with the technical skills to work these systems are often preferred during the hiring process.

Many students who want to learn these technical skills find the best training is in simulated lab environments. Because of this, the American Health Information Management Association (AHIMA) offers ‘AHIMA Virtual Lab,’ which is considered a benchmark in the industry for healthcare information simulated lab instruction.

Peirce College will now be able to incorporate the AHIMA Virtual Lab simulation software into our Healthcare Administration program this fall, thanks to a recent generous donation of $5,000 from the Connelly Foundation. The Connelly Foundation seeks to foster learning and improve the quality of life in the Greater Philadelphia area by supporting local non-profit organizations in the fields of education, health and human services, arts and culture, and civic enterprise. The Foundation values the benefits of education, and helping to facilitate it has become the cornerstone of its mission.

Many thanks to the Connelly Foundation for this donation!

Remembering Dr. Angelo E. DiAntonio

The Peirce College Community mourns the passing of former accounting professor Dr. Angelo E. DiAntonio, who died on October 18, 2013.

He joined the College in 1947 as an instructor in the Advanced Accounting Division. As a young instructor, Dr. DiAntonio found himself teaching a number of veterans from World War II, the majority of whom were older than him. He fostered a strong relationship with these students and went on to maintain a friendship with many of them for the rest of his life.

Even after leaving the faculty, Dr. DiAntonio continued to be an active member of the Peirce College Community. Perhaps his own words, shared with the Peirce College graduating class of 1952, best illustrated the strength of his commitment to Peirce College: “You are your school! When you start work in a business office, remember that you will represent your school. Your school will be judged by the quality of work you do and the attitude you take toward your employer, your fellow worker, and those who visit your office.”

A member of the College’s Wall of Fame, he also will be remembered as the namesake of the Angelo E. DiAntonio Accounting Award - a fund established by his former students that provides annual cash awards to the College’s top accounting students who demonstrate strong academic performance and good citizenship. To the end, Dr. DiAntonio was advocating for the College’s mission.

Peirce College Community, we remember Dr. Angelo E. DiAntonio and his commitment and contribution to the College’s past, present, and future.

Pay It Forward: Stephen Ampersand, Sr. ‘08, ’09

Stephen Ampersand, Sr. is the very definition of the expression “pay it forward” as it relates to Peirce. As a former Peirce admissions counselor, he started countless students on their path to degree completion. At the same time he worked at Peirce, he himself was a student at the College. He became the first member of his family to graduate from college, earning both associate and bachelor’s degrees with honors.

Now the director of financial aid at Cecil College, a community college in North East, Maryland, Stephen Ampersand is married and the father of two small children. He has also continued his educational pursuits and gone on to earn a master’s degree from Wilmington University.

Recently, his responsibilities for his young family provided a compelling reason for Stephen to do comprehensive financial planning. Through the process of self-reflection associated with that assessment, he acknowledged the role of Peirce College in his life.

In recognition of the impact Peirce has had on him, Stephen made the College a secondary beneficiary of a life insurance policy. It was a thoughtful decision which ultimately proved easy to make: “When I look at where I am today from where I came, I feel very blessed.” He goes on to assert “hard work, and the resources and access I got at Peirce, have enabled me to succeed.”

By making the College a current part of his future estate planning, Stephen Ampersand is acknowledging the foundation Peirce provided for his professional achievements and his family’s prosperity. He reminds his fellow alumni that “when you look at the successes you’ve enjoyed because of your time at Peirce, remember you worked hard AND someone gave you an opportunity.”

For more information about how you can make Peirce a part of your financial planning and give our students the opportunity they deserve, contact Chuck Wright, VP of the Office of Institutional Advancement, at 215.670.9065 or email cwright@peirce.edu.

President’s Note

As we pay tribute to our honor roll of donors in this very special issue of Peirce Perspectives, it is important to reflect on how donor contributions significantly impact our capabilities to deliver our mission.

Each year, the College provides over $2 million in institutional scholarships to our students. The scholarships help students pursue their goals of earning college degrees which position them to achieve life sustaining careers. In many cases Peirce students, a scholarship is the key difference maker in completing their programs or dropping out. Scholarships like the Board of Trustees’, J. Linford Snyder’s, the Merrell Family’s, and the Hollenbach Family’s provide annual dollars that will supply funding for future generations of Peirce students to fulfill their dreams of college degree attainment.

Beyond scholarships, donor contributions allow Peirce to develop and maintain strong curricular offerings which lead to in-demand positions in the workforce. A great example of this is the substantial contribution provided by Al Cederstrom ‘43 to support the College’s Human Resource Management program.

Finally, donor contributions provide opportunities for the College to invest in technology and facilities that represent contemporary tools for high quality teaching and learning. The PNC Technology Classroom and the Mary Walker ‘33 Center for Academic Excellence are outstanding examples of donor sponsored resources which enhance Peirce’s instructional and service quality.

Please join me in extending sincere appreciation to our donor base’s commitment to the Peirce mission. The resources and leadership our donors provide assist us in transforming the lives of our current students and the generations which will follow them in achieving college graduation and successful careers.

She's a Winner: Regina Powell
Generous donors ensure that Peirce's most deserving students have the opportunity to attend college. Scholarships awarded to our students guarantee that despite financial barriers which may have ended their degree dreams, they can persist in their studies.
A candidate for a Bachelor of Science in health care administration, student Regina Powell offers her perspective on why the Board of Trustees Scholarship she received means so much to her.
“I had depleted my financial aid funds and thought I had to drop out because I had no other options to continue my education. This scholarship has given me reassurance that my education will remain stable. The reason I chose Peirce College is because I was enthralled the instant I walked through the door. The staff made a good impression on me and I felt as though they would do the same for my education. There is no room for failure at Peirce because the support from faculty and staff is so abundant. Thank you.”

Why We Give: Rick ‘64 and Carole ‘68 Santillo
Rick and Carole Santillo are Peirce alumni who have been consistent supporters of the College and generous donors to the Annual Fund. The couple shared their insights as to why Peirce is a priority in their philanthropy.
“Peirce was an initial springboard to our future adult life. Upon furthering our education after Peirce, we realized we were just a number in a large institution. Peirce College is more than a college of higher learning. It is a personal connection to the administration and staff—it’s family. When family asks for support, we are proud to comply as we know it is appreciated.”

Peirce has initiated a partnership with Yearling, a national organization, to develop a Professional Training Corps (PTC) program comprised of low-income, young adults ages 18-24 who live in Philadelphia. PTC students take a full course load over the academic year while at the College; complete a full-time internship in the city; and benefit from a range of support services. Your support of Peirce enables us to support this partnership and build a more educated, effective workforce for the benefit of the Philadelphia region.

Recipe for Success: Peirce Entrepreneurship

“The best way to predict the future is to create it.” - Peter Drucker

The sun has not yet risen when Jovanna Acchione Bevilacqua ’81 starts her working day: she is the proprietor of Fabio & Danny’s Café, located at the train station in Wayne, PA. Hot coffee and delicious food, combined with Jovanna’s shining personality, ensures a bright start for the commuters she welcomes every morning. But while the gracious Jovanna makes it all seem easy on the surface, a deeper look reveals that her business successes have come as a result of a great deal of effort.

Owning her own business was a longstanding dream of Jovanna’s. She wanted to follow in the entrepreneurial tradition of her beloved parents, immigrants from Italy who had over the years built a very successful construction company from the ground up. Before deciding to open her own café three years ago, Jovanna and her co-owners - husband Joseph and son Fabio - had to research the “sweat equity” needed to fit out the café and approach government officials, as well as provide the services to the community.

In many ways, Jovanna’s story is typical of those who pursue the dream of owning their own business, Peirce alumnus Dr. Michael Schirmer, an expert in entrepreneurial studies, notes that “the successful entrepreneur has the insight to recognize opportunity where most see perilous reality.”
